PATENTS.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN OFFICE,
And Agency of the U.S. Patent Office, Washington
93 Sate Street—Boston.

THE subscriber, by appointment from the Commissioner of Patents, is Agent of the U. S. Patent Office for the purpose of receiving and forwarding to the same all such models, specimens of ingredients, and manufactures, as shall be intended to be patented, or deposited therein, which will be received and forwarded, free of expense and risk, to their owners, and with all possible despatch.

The subscriber will prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings, will make researches into American and Foreign works, for establishing the validity or utility of inventions and render advice on all legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents procured in Europe and other countries.

By application at this office, inventors are saved the time and expense of a journey to Washington and delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. The experience, of fifteen year's practice—as extensive collection of rare works, documents, drawings, &c. on mechanical subjects and the Patent Laws—and patents of different countries, collected at much expense during the long time this office has been established, and to which daily additions are being made, together with accounts here kept of inventions patented at Washington, enable me to afford superior assistance and information to inventors desirous of securing Patents, while in other respects might be difficult of attainment.

Highly Important to Farmers.

HAVING purchased the right to use LOOMIS'S Method of making MANURE in all the towns in the County, not previously disposed of, west of Penobscot, and south of Pleasant river, I am ready to sell the same, by towns or individual rights, as may best suit purchasers.

When it is taken into consideration, that one ton of dry straw—such as the straw of Rye, can be converted into from six to eight loads of rich manure, suitable for corn—that green vegetables, and turf, can be made into manure of equal value in ten days—and that the high ten prices are raised by the manure of sheep all winnowings will unquestionably, this invaluable method must be for the benefit of the farming community. Agricultural Chemistry and the results have been frequently produced by Loomis's process. I am prepared to show by testimony from scientific and practical farmers in various sections of the country.

Single rights will be sold for the purchaser to use on his own farm, or to purchasers will be limited to one town, with a book containing the process of making, &c. &c. Sales to be legal with many other conditions, which can be better known to the purchaser by letter or by personal application.

Persons at a distance, by forwarding four dollars (post paid) will be promptly furnished with a single right and book as above.

John S. Seymour, Editor.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 9, 1848.

☞ The editor of the 'Democrat' seems quite astonished that the Whigs should undertake to discuss the qualifications and availability of their men of mark for the Presidency, and the propriety of selecting either the one or the other as their candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people The last Democrat devotes a column or two, to a representation & misrepresentation and a running commentary upon several articles which have appeared in the Whig, by the friends of Mr. Clay, and the friends of Gen Taylor There is more downright grammyism in the view the Democrat puts forth in this matter, than in any thing that has fallen under our notice for a long time.

This discussion on the part of the Whigs may lead the Democrat to suppose that the Whig party is convulsed with internal dissensions, and that these differences about the most available candidate to be taken, will cause a rupture in the party Wepresm assure the Democrat that the writers in our columns are all sound Whigs, and they write freely for the purpose of preventing any resistance to the selection of a candidate on the part of the Whigs — They will labor with zeal for the election of the man the Whig party shall approve Whether Mr. Clay, or Gen Taylor, or any other prominent Whig shall be nominated, he will have their influence and their votes. The last is that the Whigs intend, in sober earnestness, to deserve and to win success at the Presidential election, and to put a stop to the extravagant, debt-heaping and debt having loco foco administration, the legitimate effects of whose measures just begin to be felt by the people, and its increasing evils cause many to tremble for the future

☞ We heard, a few days since, of a man shaving about the city to beg a paper for the purpose of getting Mr Pinder's excellent letter on the subject of choice fruits for the North, when by paying fifty cents for our weekly paper for three months he could have the whole series of articles on fruit and a great amount of other valuable matter in addition So he people have an odd way of getting along

For the Whig & Courier.

The Presidency.

"Non vires populi, hinc fortunæ."

The manifestations of public feeling on the question of the next Presidency, through newspaper discussions, assemblies of the people, and the action of Legislative bodies, in various sections of the Union, some of them under our Northern sky, show satisfactorily that as no to contest is its agitation premature

The hour has arrived, freighted for the Whig party, with the momentous responsibility of a wise selection of the man, who shall preside for a time over the destinies of this mighty Republic—the great servant of the nation, placed far above Royal State to shield and administer a policy of government which for long years to come may carry the ship of state along on the full tide of successful fortune, or leave it for a while bound in shallows,' to be at no very distant day stranded and lost

We cannot call it unexpected or extraordinary, when we glance over the illustrious names of living Whig citizens which adorn the roll of American great men, that there should not be an entire unanimity of feeling or opinion as to this selection We are embarrassed with our riches

Yet such unanimity must be attained or all hopes of putting aside the present dynasty, intoxicated with power, and reckless alike of all principle, and the country's weal, in their efforts to preserve it, and of arresting the downward course of the Republic, will be scattered to the winds, and a long and hopeless minority will be the doom of the conservative friends of the country and the constitution

With all the zeal and all the ardour of attachment and admiration, which the great qualities of Henry Clay and his splendid services to his country, have so long exalted in the hearts and judgments of the Whig party, and which have elevated him to the post of leader in three hard fought and closely contested political campaigns all ending alas, in defeat, many of his friends all judging as we think, for his happiness and the interests of the cause, are seeking to withdraw him from an unwelcome and again to place up on him the Presidential nomination

No one more highly appreciates the illustrious services of this great statesman, the writer of this article, and there can be no rational doubt, that if nominated for the high office, which he would fill with increased glory for himself, add to the great benefit and prosperity of the Union, a large portion of the Whig party, would rally to his suppor , with all the enthusiasm of personal friendship, and, if their hopes could again, after the sad experience of the past, be raised to excitement, the whole party as before would rally again around him

'With Atlantean shoulders fit to bear
The weight of mightiest monarchies!'

But fond, sanguine and confiding, 'of imagination all compact,' must he be, who can believe that such hopes and such a confidence can ever again animate the masses of that party, marching under the same gallant but unfortunate leader—and large indeed must be the measure of his faith, who can read the history of the past, and so scan the signs of the times as to obtain from them, an augury in favor of the election of Mr Clay

No, the very recollection of that past, of its disappointments, discomfitures and defeats, with the discouragement and hope lessness which they impressed upon the hearts, would keep thousands from the polls, and would alone suffice to realise the result, which their worst apprehensions had suggested

Such is human nature—

"Our doubts are Traitors,
'And make us lose the good we oft might win
By fearing to attempt"

and if our doubts, how much more our fears especially when they are the offspring of a sad experience and a lamentable reminiscence And after all, it is not to reward a favorite citizen however worthy, or to crown an Idol, that the Whig party have again and again made such heroic efforts and put forth their valor and their strength, in so many political contests They had a nobler aim, a worthier purpose The ends they aimed at, were their Country's Then God and Truth

Yet had it been otherwise, and they had acted solely from personal regard to him, Mr Clay's most devoted admirers and friends, might well be satisfied, that no man's interests and feelings had ever been so relentlessly, so perseveringly, so energetically and with such singleness of purpose cherished, supported and advanced as his have been through evil report and good report, by the great party of which he has been the cherished ornament At he last election, every effort in which patriotic principle and personal respect could dictate, was made and made in vain, and without attempting in a single newspaper article, any close or statistical calculation I content myself with asking where is the prospect or the probability of obtaining for him in another contest a greater numerical strength?

If a reason before advanced to, the prospect of the reverse, even if we omit the consideration, that since that period, another illustrious individual has taken such a hold of the popular affections, and will at all events carry with him such a share of popular suffrage for the Presidential office, as must unavoidably materially diminish the strength of Mr Clay The latter has not the prestige of success, and with all his rare merits his almost unrivalled talents, his accomplishments as a Statesman, his virtues as a high principled patriot, and his fascinating power over individual minds, he is wanting in the element of popularity in its broadest sense, in the power of attracting to his standard the masses of freemen, or of making successful inroads into the ranks of his political opponents

If these things are so, it follows, as the light the day that his nomination would be but the sure sword of defeat—a suicidal sacrifice of the cause in an abortive effort for the man.

It is related of Sheridan that after the defeat and rout of the party to which he was attached, in consequence of their attempt to force through Parliament a measure, against which the King had manifested a consciousness and an effectual hostility which rendered its passage hopeless, he said that he had frequently heard of their running their heads against a stone wall; but he observed his friends formed the only instance to be found in history, of statesmen who first built a wall and then run their heads against it' May this witticism never find another application to any act of the Whig party connected with the interests of election.

At those who wish to put an end to the railroading which the Society now groans, to see once more the old and salutary control of the Constitution, the sovereign sense but legitimate power, to manifest some respect for the enlightened opinion of mankind, and to be a little restricted from the very 'negative liberty' by an old fashioned regard, or at least outward manifestations of regard for the principles of justice, morality, honesty and patriotism—all such have common object—an object sure to be dictated by common—certain to be attained by a wise unanimity.

We can hope from the contest from love to no man—not from love of its excitements—neither for the pleasure of seeing or receiving blows—nor even for the glory of conquering or the spoils of victory Least of all do we go into it to martyrize—to submit our backs to stripes—and to show with what demonstrated alacrity we can court, and with what effectual fortitude we can meet defeat But we do go into it for success—for triumph—for victory—the success of a great cause—the triumph of principle—the victory of right—at all events not to be beaten, but to conquer

For the Whig and Courier.

Each One may do something.

While reflecting on days gone by, the following encouragement came to my recollection

In the midst of my naitvity, an effort was making to form a Sewing Circle, for the benefit of the suffering poor. It was not to be organ, but one of general interest One lady on the committee for soliciting members, said that all who were interested in the cause, might in some way lend a helping hand, and accordingly prepared waiting on Miss and Mrs in succession

To this serious objections were made, as as Betty would certainly go if invited, and it could not be foreseen that it was possible for her to do any thing However, without much controversy, the invitation was extended, and the answer was somewhat like this. "Why it would not be of no use for me to go, I could not do nothin, you know I can't see none, but I will tell you what I can do,—my horse may go."

The subject of the horse's membership being brought before the Society, there was not a dissenting voice; we all agreed to receive him into co-partnership, if not companionship The result was, that a arms were no obstacle in the way of our meetings However inclement the weather, aunt Betty's horse was on hand—Though young at the time, I recollect, distinctly, riding on one occasion, after a severe snow and rain storm, when in some places, the sleigh literally dipped it water By this Association, much good was accomplished, and many hearts were made glad

The willingness of aunt Betty to do what she could, the punctuality and perseverance taught lessons not soon to be forgotten, and it was universally acknowledged that the Society was more indebted to her for its successful operations, than to any other member

FIDELIA.

For the Whig and Courier.

The following Eclogue, from Coleridge, is exceedingly applicable at the present time to an elevated personage in this country—letters four do form the name"—the time and place being only changed

FIRE, FAMINE AND SLAUGHTER.

A WAR ECLOGUE.

The Scene—a depopulated track in Mexico Famine is discovered lying on the ground, to her sister Fire, and Slaughter

Famine Sisters! Sisters! who sent you here?

Slaughter (to Fire) I will whisper it in her ear

Fire No! No! No!
Spirits hear what fiends tell!
'Theil make a holiday in hell
No! No! No!
Myself I seated a throne below,
And all he mark that damned he,
Leaped up at once in anarchy,
Clapped their hands and danced for glee
They no longer heeded me
But laughed to hear Hell a burning rafters
Clattering in re echo laughters!
No! No! No!
Spirits hear what fiends tell!
'I will make absolutes of hell'

Famine Whisper it softer! so and so!
In a dark hint, soft and slow

Slaughter Letters four do form his name——
And who sent you?

Both The same, the same!

Slaughter His name by stealth, and unlocked my den,
And I have drunk the blood since then
Of the one three hundred thousand men.

Both Who leads you do it?

Slaughter The same, the same!
Letters four do form his name
He let me loose, and cried, Hallos!
To him alone the praise is due

Famine Thanks, sister, thanks! the man have bled,
Their wives and their children hunt for bread
I stood in a swampy field of battle,
With bones and skulls I made a rattle,
To frighten the wolf and carrion crow [go
And the homeless dog but they would not
So off I flew, for here could I hear
To see them gorge their dainty fare?
I heard a groan and a scornful squall,
And through the shingle of a cottage wall—
Can you guess what I saw there?

Both Whisper it, sister, in our ear.

Famine A baby beat its dying mother.
I had starved the one, and was starving the other!

Both Who leads you do it?

Famine The same, the same!
Letters four do form his name.
He let me loose, and cried, Hallos!
To him alone the praise is due

Fire. Sisters! sisters! Team same!
Hedge and corn fields all on flame,
I triumphed o'er the setting sun!
And all the while the work was done;
On his I marched with my huge strides,
I flung back my head and I held my sides,
It was no sure a pride of his
To see the swelter'd castle run
With smooth gulop through the night,
Scared by the red red nosy light!
By the light of his own burning pet
Was seen where naked rebel shot!
The horses stream past the flame and hind,
While brash fell in the roof, I wise,
Oh some of these six, bed-rid horses,
That deal in discontent and curses.

Both. Who leads you do it?

Fire The same, the same!
Letters four do form his name
He let me loose, and cried, Hallos!
To him alone the praise is due.

All. He let us loose, and cried, Hallos!
Never shall we want for food!

Famine. Wisdom lodges with—look of fear!
Pit guard, Prudence did depart,
Quickly will I suppress that heart!
Fire. Famine! Famine! Famine!
Famine. Famine! Famine! Famine!
Slaughter. Famine! Famine! Famine!
All. They shall tear him piecemeal right!

Fire O cheerless holiness and undone!
And is this all that you can do
For him who did so much for you!
Thirty years he, for your needs,
Made the sun his yearly steeds,
And he yet have work to do!
[illegible]
Cling to him everlastingly

To the "Trustees of Penobscot Agricultural Society."

The undersigned Committee on Oxen and Steers have attended to the duties assigned them and make the following report:

The committee regret that there was not as much competition in this department of the fair as would be desirable, probably in consequence of the storm which prevailed, although there were many fine specimens of Stock showing an improvement from past years and a determination on the part of the society to promote the interests of Agriculture

There were 31 pairs of oxen entered for premium and also one for exhibition by Levi Burrill, of Newport, which were fine oxen and entitle Mr Burrill to much credit The team of oxen of 17 years, entered by the East Glenburn Club and the interest which is manifest in their neighborhood in the promotion of the interests of Agriculture, are worthy of great praise and notwithstanding it was the only team entered for premium, the committee has no hesitation in awarding to the East Glenburn Club the Society's first premium of $3,00

The committee award to George Oakes of Exeter, for the best pair of 4 years old oxen girthing 7 feet and 8 inches the first premium of $4 00

To Henry Batman of Dixmont, the second premium of $3 00.

The third premium on oxen, to Charles Rollins of Charleston, $2 00.

The committee award to Sherburn Sanborn of Charleston, for the best pair of 3 years old Steers girthing six feet and seven inches, handy and well proportioned the Society's first premium $3,00

To O A Ireland of Stetson, for the second best $2,50

The committee award to Samuel Batman of Plymouth, for the best pair of two years old Steers measuring 6 feet 4½ inches and well proportioned, the Society's first premium $2,50

To Nathaniel Burrill of Newport, the second premium, $2,00.

The committee award to Henry Batman of Dixmont, for the best one year old Steers, measuring 5 feet and 7 inches, the Society's first premium $2 00,

To William Grinnell of Exeter, the second premium, $1,00

There was but one pair of Steer calves exhibited and those by Samuel Batman of Plymouth, which were a fair specimen of the interest taken in the raising of Stock by that gentleman which entitles him to great praise, and a premium of $1,00.

The calves girthed five feet and a half inch

There were but two pairs of oxen presented to the committee for trial of strength and we think it not strange, for the way three oxen drew was a question to those that stood looking on. The oxen of Henry Batman girthing six feet and nine inches, were first put on a cart loaded with gravel, weighing about 60 cwt, and hauled the same to the hill assigned for the trial about 100 Rods, elevation of the hill about 4½ or 5 degrees After arriving at the hill where a large crowd had assembled, five men were put on the cart in addition to the gravel and Mr Batman's oxen put to the trial, said contrary to the expectations of most of the spectators, they drew it up the hill handsomely.

A. Lock's oxen of Charleston, measuring 6 feet 5 inches, were then put on to the same load of gravel and seven men in addition. The teamsters and oxen conferred their manners and hauled the load up the hill handsomely Mr H Batman's oxen, by his request, were then put on the same load of gravel as before and eleven men in addition and when a first rate teamster Mr Tedbetter, presented himself as their teamster the oxen hauled powerfully and started about two rods before which was cut down to 75 cwt

The committee do not hesitate to decide that there was not the difference in the last of the loads as purported on the difference in the size of the oxen and therefore award the first premium to A. Lock, $4 00

The second premium to Henry Batman $3,00.

All which is respectfully submitted.

Leaf—Thus unconsidering man! wherefore dost thou fear my way.

Stone—Thou idle wanderer! water rolled me hither Quarrel with it, not with me But wherefore, I may ask in turn, dost thou flutter against me?

Leaf—Wind blew me hither. Blame it, not me

Stone—Then may water and wind contend together and dispute instead of us, while thou and I remain at peace

Leaf—Nay, but water and wind will not struggle in anger For a sweet bird sang one summer evening amid my tree, and from him I learned that they are fair twin sisters; and when they seem to wrestle, it is but a dance together and embrace, and when they split their waters it is but to join in song.

One of the proprietors of the Transcript was entirely cured of a severe cough of four months' continuance, by the use of it in a few days, and several of our friends and acquaintances, who have tried the article have found it of great service in relieving them of severe coughs and shortness of breathing, in which they had been afflicted. SCARLET FEVER usually commences with nausea and sickness, great thirst, headache, redness of the eyes, fever in two or three days a pricking sensation is experienced and an eruption of a fiery redness begins to appear, first on the face and arms, and finally a uniform redness covers the whole body.

In cases of Scarlet Fever, Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills should be taken every night or getting in bed, as much seems to produce copious perspiration by the bowels. This relieves, if speedily followed up, with an abundance of the diluent drink of Scarlet Fever, at the same time the appetite will be improved, and the blood completely purified.

Beware of Quacks—for all Scarlet Fever are counterfeit—they contain deleterious ingredients, which will destroy the constitution. The Indian Vegetable Pills are purely vegetable, and can be taken by the most delicate female with perfect safety. Sold by the sole agent for Bangor, GEO W. LADD, Bangor. Sold also by dealers generally throughout the State. 2m4w f 7

Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla and Dock.

THE virtues of roots named are the principal ingredients of this medicine. With the exception of vegetable origin are combined, designed to render them more active, and consequently more immediately effective.

The Dock, or rather a species of it, now ranks as a medicinal plant, second to no one of the vegetable kingdom. With the aid of a distinguished chemist, whom the proprietor has consulted in the preparation of the compound, he has succeeded in extracting the full essence of this valuable root, and in combining with the extract of the root for any considerable length of time.

For many years the proprietor has tested in his practice the efficacy of the principal substances of the compound, and is perfectly satisfied that they possess all the properties which have been ascribed to them. Recently he conceived the idea of uniting them, which has resulted in the production of the compound. In this the ingredients are found to act in harmony, and to lose none of the qualities which they separately possess.

A large portion of Sarsaparilla is soluble than has generally been supposed. The extract taken in the usual way, and most liable to decomposition, is rendered by subjecting the root to the action of the menstrua usually employed in extracting its virtues, for a long time, without heat or any other accelerating agent. Heat is permitted to be used in the compound, that less not been obtained by the process and that has been less than a year in preparation.

The Compound is recommended for Scrofula, Erysipelas, Ulcerous affections, Eruptions, and Mercurial diseases. Also for the numerous maladies arising from sedentary employments, occupation of a harassing and fatiguing nature, intense applications, exposures to extremes of heat and cold, overtasking the physical powers, and other abuses of the constitution among which are Neuralgia, Pain, Affection of the Liver, Bilious Complaints, and Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

In diseases of warm climates, with which the proprietor becomes familiar in his practice in Havana, some years since, the compound will prove particularly efficacious, both as a remedy and a preventive.

This medicine has been for some time in use in this city, where the proprietor has passed nearly half a century of his professional life. It was extensively prescribed by him while in practice, and it is believed to be in favor with his medical brethren in general, to whom he is known.

STOVE WAREHOUSE,

Cooking Stove. American Airtight

Over 1000 OF THE American Air-Tight Cooking Stoves

WERE RETAILED in Boston by Gardiner Chilson, in the short space of six months, and a large number have been sold by myself in this city. This Stove is not equalled by any other stove in the United States, and the unparalleled sales it has met with fully bespeak its unparalleled merits.

HOUSE-KEEPERS should be sure and examine this superior Stove, which has won the admiration of several thousand house-keepers the past season. It has more real and useful improvements than all others combined. The fire-brick Oven-top has proved to be of great value in absorbing the steam and causing the bread to rise and bake light, (equal to the house brick oven.) The brick is found so be more durable than the iron top. It also equalises the heat around the oven, and a much more even bake is produced in this stove than any other stove known. It has a more perfect arrangement for roasting in front. The Summer arrangement for broiling, boiling, toasting, &c., is complete. The grate clears itself, thereby giving the ashes into the ash-pit. The fires are large, and so arranged as not to fill up with ashes. It is surprising to see how small an amount of fuel it requires to perform so great a variety of cooking. Its inviting appearance, substantial construction, and general good qualities, have set it fourth to be

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT is well known that there is secreted in the stomach a fluid which is called Gastric Juice that this food when taken into the stomach is acted upon by this Gastric Juice, which is now converted into a pulpy substance called Chyme which passes from the upper portion of the Intestines called Duodenum where it is mixed with Bile and Pancreatic Juice and is by mechanical motion of the Intestines separated from the Nutritious portion which is taken up by small vessels called Lacteals carried to the blood and converted into Blood The food after being so changed by the Intestines, gives nourishment, and supplies the waste of the body, this is the process as I understand it

Now I contend that the fact that the Lacteals take up the nutritious portion of the food is proof positive that the Gastric Juice is not designed to act upon the food after it has left the stomach, as there is no known existing law of the human system that requires a fluid to act upon food after it has left the stomach, and as the Gastric Juice is designed to act upon the food in the stomach, and as the Lacteals take up the nutritious portion of the food after it has left the stomach, it is evident that the Gastric Juice has performed its office before the food leaves the stomach, and that the Lacteals take up the nutritious portion of the food after the Gastric Juice has performed its office, and that the Gastric Juice is not designed to act upon the food after it has left
